EU warns Musk of 'sanctions' after Twitter suspends journalists

BRUSSELS: The European Union (EU) on Friday warned Elon Musk that Twitter could be subject to sanctions under a future media law after the "worrying" suspension of several journalists from the messaging platform. "EU's Digital Services Act requires respect of media freedom and fundamental rights. Elon Musk should be aware of that. There are red lines. And sanctions, soon," EU commissioner Vera Jourova posted on Twitter | P19
